

GUELZOW MURDERERS TO HANG TOMORROW

Ewald and Frank Shiblowski, Philip Sommerling and Thomas Schultz, convicted of the murder of Fred Guelzow, must hang tomorrow in the county jail.

With them will be executed Thomas Jennings, a negro, who murdered Clarence Hiller, a railroad official.

The men were doomed to death beyond all hope this morning when oGv. Deneen announced that the board of pardons had denied an application to commute the sentence of any of them to life imprisonment.

The men were stoical when Jailer Davies announced their fate to them. Some of their relatives who were with them at the time created a scene in the jail corridor. The wife of Philip Sommerling fainted, and was removed to the jail hospital. The mother of Frank and Ewald was carried from the building.

Julia Kline, the 18-year-old sweetheart of Ewald Shiblowski, sobbed hysterically, and reached into the barred cell to grasp the hand of her sweetheart.

Throughout the men were calm, chiding their women for breaking down, and even cursing. They will be visited for the last time by their relatives this evening.

The men will be executed soon after 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

HUNT IS PUSHED OFF THE CITY'S PAYROLL

Capt. Nicholas Hunt was this afternoon dismissed from the Chicago police department by Chief McWeeny on orders of Mayor Harrison.

This action followed the refusal of Hunt to stand trial before the chief this morning on charges of inefficiency and neglect of duty.

Hunt appeared in the civil service rooms with his attorney to ask for a continuance. Members of the commission, which had been defied by Hunt, were present. The corporation counsel advised the chief at every step.

McWeeny denied Hunt's plea. Hunt and his attorney started to leave the room. McWeeny ordered Hunt to remain.

"I refuse," answered the captain. "My attorney will speak for me."

Hunt's attorney charged the chief was not conducting a hearing, but an inquisition. The attorney shouted. The chief shouted. The captain shouted.

In the meantime a witness had been called to the stand, but no one paid any attention to him. He was a sideshow. All eyes were on the main tent.

Finally Capt. Hunt and his attorney stalked out of the room, leaving the chief to orate to the empty air.

Then the chief removed the captain from the city payroll.
